

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method or apparatus for use with a database system that stores a join view associated with plural base relations includes receiving modification operations to modify at least two of the base relations of the join view, and re-ordering the received 5 modification operations to avoid concurrent execution of modification operations of more than one of at least two base relations.